This year's Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction (DPI) conference provides a significantly different format and organization of content matter from past years. While there are still 90-minute sectionals on "best practice" models in a variety of presentation areas, they are focused on three specific tracks – AODA, Tobacco, and violence prevention. A significant portion of the conference matter is organized as extended training workshops.

Registration fees:
$125 through November 13
$165 beginning November 14

A Not On Tobacco (N-O-T) Facilitator Training workshop will be one of four trainings to be included in the conference and are limited to pre-registrants. Since space is expected to fill, you are encouraged to commit early to a training that may be of interest to you.
